Excerpt: .attract the more attention, inasmuch as it is the only building among all the edifices of the place which continues standing. The point of view from which M. Linant has sketched it appeared to me interesting, because it presents a frieze and cornice in very good taste, which may give an idea of the style. The other details, with which the interior. of this building was overloaded, were in stucco plastered on the wall. These have been destroyed. by time. Some traces of the ornaments are discernible, but they are too imperfect to furnish the subject of a drawing. I sketched the same temple, placing myself in front of it, so that I might represent the details of the cornice, and the disposition of the peristyle. A paved way, which is well preserved in many places, though in others it has yielded to the plough,...
